Description:

It is night. Inside a house, a child is getting ready for bed. A hall light is switched on, toys and animals are settled in their places. Papa reads a story, Mama comes in to say good night, dreams wait to enter sleep...And if the moon could talk, it would tell of the many different nighttime activities that it sees from its vantage point, outside the house and high, high above. In this tranquil, evocative picture book, text and pictures illuminate interior and exterior nighttime scenes, showing us what the moon might see-and say, if it could talk. And If the Moon Could Talk is the winner of the 1998 Boston Globe - Horn Book Award for Picture Books.

This is the perfect book for bed time reading. My two-year-old twins love its dreamy, sing-song short stanzas. The lyrical quality of the text is perfectly complemented by the pastel illustrations. The narrative gently intercuts between a child's perspective on winding down for night time and depictions of the moon illuminating natural or domestic settings all around the world at dusk. Each couplet is linked by visual cues - little readers will enjoy connecting models and toys in the familiar child's environment with their counterparts in the real world (toy tractor to farmer bringing in the cows at dusk; toy boat to ship sailing under the moonlight). At its conclusion the book brings together both halves of the narrative as the moon whispers good night to the child tucked up in bed. It helps reassure your little ones that going to sleep makes them part of something every animal and all people over the whole world are doing - the ideal note on which to end before switching off the light!
